

As a co-author with Kenneth Couch and Oskar Harmon of “A Randomized Assessment of Online Learning”, the university where this study was conducted employs William Alpert. Professor Alpert received no additional compensation for the research contained in this paper from any entity or individual. Institutional Review Board approval was received for this study from the university where it was conducted.