

Disclosure Statement
AEA Papers and Proceedings 2019

Paper Title: The Gender Gap in Undergraduate Economics Course Persistence and Degree Selection

Authors: Laura J. Ahlstrom and Carlos J. Asarta

Disclosure Statement for Carlos J. Asarta

This research was completed through the financial support of a University of Delaware Dissertation Fellow Award received by Laura J. Ahlstrom in 2017. Carlos J. Asarta is a Professor of Economics at the University of Delaware and was Laura J. Ahlstrom's dissertation advisor. Laura finished her Ph.D. degree in 2018 and is currently employed at Oklahoma State University.

The author declares that he is the Director of the Center for Economic Education and Entrepreneurship (CEEE) at the University of Delaware. Additionally, the author declares that he is the President of the Delaware Council on Economic Education (DCEE), a non-profit organization affiliated with the national Council for Economic Education. The mission of both the CEEE and DCEE is to prepare K-12 educators and students in economics, personal finance, and entrepreneurship by providing dynamic, effective, and standards-based professional learning, resources, and programs.

The author declares that he has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper. Furthermore, the author declares that the research described in this paper is not relevant to a close relative or partner of the author. No party, other than the 2019 AEA discussant and members of the AEA Committee on Economic Education, had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

The data used in this paper are from institutional records obtained with Institutional Review Board (IRB) approval at the University of Delaware.