

Disclosure Statement: David Figlio
“Long-Term Orientation and Educational Performance”
January 3, 2019

1. Sources of financial support for the research.

I have received funding from the U.S. Department of Education to directly support this research. This research was also made possible by previous grants from the National Science Foundation and National Institutes of Child Health and Human Development.

2. Each interested party from whom he or she has received significant financial support, summing to at least $10,000 in the past three years, in the form of consultant fees, retainers, grants and the like.

I have received $10,000 or more over the past three years from the following organizations. None of these would be considered a conflict of interest.

Grants from U.S. Department of Education, National Science Foundation, Laura and John Arnold Foundation, Smith Richardson Foundation.

3. Each author should disclose any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations or profit-making entities. A “relevant” organization is one whose policy positions, goals, or financial interests relate to the article.

No paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations or profit-making entities.

4. The disclosures required above apply to any close relative or partner of any author.

No spousal or family-related potential COIs of which I am aware.

5. Each author must disclose if another party had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

The Florida Departments of Education and Health had the right to review this paper prior to circulation, but only to ensure confidentiality and non-disclosure. No agency had the right to review the paper’s contents per se.

6. IRB Approval

This project was ruled exempt by the Institutional Review Boards of Northwestern University and the Florida Department of Health, and no further review is required.
