

Disclosure Statement for “Maimonides Rule Redux”

Joshua D. Angrist
MIT Department of Economics

Angrist’s work on this project was funded in part by grants from the Laura and John Arnold Foundation, the Spencer Foundation, and the National Science Foundation under award SES-1426541.

Angrist receives income from sales of textbooks and occasional short courses.

The data used in this study were provided by the Israeli Ministry of Education for use in the Ministry’s secure research facility.

This study was not reviewed by an IRB as the data used in it consist of pre-existing administrative records collected by a government agency for statistical purposes, and analyzed with the permission and under the supervision of this agency. There is no risk of harm to subjects or disclosure of personally identifiable information as a result of this study.

No one had the right to review this paper before release.

Angrist’s daughter teaches at a Boston charter school.

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "J. Angrist", is centered on the page.