

American Economic Journals Disclosure Statement

Date: April 11, 2019

Author Name: Sarah R. Cohodes

Manuscript Title: The Long-Run Impacts of Specialized Programming for High-Achieving Students

Disclosure Statement:

The Rappaport Institute for Greater Boston, the Taubman Center for State and Local Government, and the Multidisciplinary Program on Inequality and Social Policy, all at the Harvard Kennedy School, and the Lab for Economic Applications and Policy at Harvard University provided financial support for this project.

The author has not held any paid or unpaid positions at any relevant organizations that would pose a conflict of interest to this research. She declares that she has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to this paper.

The Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education and the Boston Public Schools had a right to review this article to ensure that no individual's identifiable information was disclosed.

The author obtained Institutional Review Board (IRB) approvals for this project from Harvard University, NBER, and Teachers College Columbia University.