

Naomi Hausman
Department of Economics, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem

---

Mount Scopus, Jerusalem 91905, Israel
Tel.: 972-2-588-3234 • Fax: 972-2-588-3244 • E-mail: hausman@nber.org

April 8, 2021

Re: Disclosure statement

Dear Editors,

This statement is to disclose information regarding my affiliations and financial support while writing the paper “Homeownership, Labor Supply, and Neighborhood Quality,” co-authored with Tamar Ramot-Nyska and Noam Zussman, both of the Bank of Israel.

I received financial support from the Israel Science Foundation (analogous to the NSF), grant number 2118/17, for the production of this research. Bridge funding before the receipt of the ISF grant was provided by the Eshkol Center at Hebrew University.

Among the data sources used for this paper were confidential data from Israel’s National Insurance Institute (labor supply), Tax Authority (private housing transactions), and public housing authorities (identities of tenants and exact locations of units). The NII data, combined with the public housing authority data, were accessed from the NII’s research room. The NII reviewed results to ensure that no confidential information was disclosed. Aggregates were exported from the NII research room to enable merging with confidential housing transaction data at the Bank of Israel. Only statistical results were released from analyses done on the Bank of Israel server.

Sincerely,

Naomi Hausman