Disclosure statement
for the paper
“The Political Economy of Populism”

Elias Papaioannou

In the last three years, I have received compensation (in excess of ten thousand US dollars) from the following sources:

- as an academic, Professor of Economics at the London Business School, London, United Kingdom;
- from MIT and Harvard University, where I served as a Visiting Professor at the Department of Economics during 2019-2020
- as part-time consultant, from the European Bank of Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) to assist with the 2020 Transition Survey.

I hold a European Research Council grant on the Political Economy of African Development: Nation, Ethnicity, and History.

I hold an unpaid position of Research Fellow at the Centre for Economic Policy Research (CEPR), a non-profit organization.

I also serve without any compensation at the Editorial Board of various research journals (Econometrica, Review of Economic Studies, Journal of Comparative Economics, Journal of the European Economic Association, and the Economic Journal).

At the London Business School, I serve as Academic Co-Director of the Wheeler Institute for Business and Development.

I believe that the entities above have not exerted any influence on my research.
