

Stanford University

David C. Chan
Associate Professor of Health Policy

615 Crothers Way
Encina Commons
Stanford, CA 94305-6006
david.c.chan@stanford.edu
650-725-9582

November 8, 2021

Re: "Is There a VA Advantage? Evidence from Dually Eligible Veterans"

I attest to the following:

1. This project received funding from VA HSR&D I01HX002631, the Laura and John Arnold Foundation, and the Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research.
2. The project was approved by the Stanford IRB under protocol 34898 ("Comparison of VA and non-VA Medical Care"). This approval process included review by the VA Palo Alto Health Care System (VAPAHCS) Scientific Review Subcommittee.
3. I am a staff physician at VAPAHCS. I have practiced in both VA and non-VA health care systems.
4. I have no conflicts of interest to disclose.
5. The contents of this paper do not represent the views of VA or the United States Government.
6. Research conducted at the VA is required to comply with VHA Directive 1200.19. It stipulates that all research should be made public. At the time of acceptance for publication, the paper will be submitted to the internal VA PubTracker system to verify that it does not disclose confidential information.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "D. Chan".

David Chan
Associate Professor of Health Policy
Stanford University