

Disclosure for Olga Rostapshova

Paper title: Does Lowering Entry Costs to Economics for Underrepresented Students Affect Outcomes? Preliminary Experimental Evidence

- This research was funded by Laura and John Arnold Foundation Grant and JPAL-North America.
- I have received no financial support from interested parties.
- I have no positions as an officer, director, or board member of a relevant organization.
- I have no close relatives or partners for whom the above criteria apply.
- Representatives of the Brookings Institution, including David Wessel and Stephanie Cencula, as well as University of Chicago Booth School of Business staff such as Pietro Veronesi and Stephen Lamb, had the opportunity to review this paper prior to circulation to clarify details of the program. No other parties have reviewed the paper.
- This study received Institutional Review Board approval from the University of Chicago (IRB #21-1764).