

Disclosure Statement
“Who Will Fight?”
The All-Volunteer Army After 9/11”
12 January, 2017

1. Sources of financial support for the research.

I have no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

2. Each interested party from whom he or she has received significant financial support, summing to at least $10,000 in the past three years, in the form of consultant fees, retainers, grants and the like.

I have received no financial support.

3. Each author should disclose any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations or profit-making entities. A “relevant” organization is one whose policy positions, goals, or financial interests relate to the article.

Research Analyst, Office of Economic and Manpower Analysis, West Point, NY

4. The disclosures required above apply to any close relative or partner of any author.

None of my close relatives hold any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of any relevant non-profit organization or profit-making entities.

5. Each author must disclose if another party had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

The Public Affairs Office (PAO) at the United States Military Academy has the right to review to the paper to ensure that it does not contain classified information or information related to operations security. PAO requests that we include the following disclosure statement: “The views expressed herein are those of the authors and do not reflect the position of the United States Military Academy, the Department of the Army, or the Department of Defense.”

6. IRB

The administrative data used in this project falls under IRB data exemptions.

Susan Payne Carter
Assistant Professor of Economics
Department of Social Sciences, West Point