

HOWARD
UNIVERSITY

AEA Summer Training Program

May 22—July 20, 2025 • Washington, D.C.

- Intensive two-month residential program
- Two levels of study
- Course work in math, microeconomics, econometrics, and research methods
- Real-world experiences unique to the nation's capital
- Presented in collaboration with the Women's Institute for Science, Equity and Race, and economics faculty collaborator, the US Federal Reserve Board

Application deadline: January 31, 2025

“Being a part of AEASP was a rewarding experience! It confirmed that pursuing a Ph.D. in economics was the journey for me and provided me with a community of so many like-minded individuals passionate about economics.”

Judene Josephs, AEASP 2023, B.A. 2024, Howard University, and 1st-year Ph.D. (Econ), Georgia State University

“It is inspiring to see the caliber of research the students are able to produce by the end of the program.”

Jevay Grooms, AEASP 2016, 2017, and 2021 AEASP Research and Faculty Fellow

Howard University and the American Economic Association extend a warm thanks to our 2024 sponsors:

Amazon

American Society of Hispanic Economists

Analysis Group

Association for Economic Research of Indigenous Peoples

Bates White

Cornerstone Research

Federal Reserve Board of Governors

National Association for Business Economists

National Economic Association

National Science Foundation

Peter G. Peterson Foundation

Stata

Women's Institute for Science, Equity, and Race

For more information: <http://economics.howard.edu/aeasp> • Email aeasp@howard.edu